Theme 1: Communication

E-Mail

Lesson 1-5
Book pages 10-11

💡 Big idea: E-mails should be short, clear and polite. Follow the Ten Rules for Writing E-mails: think first, include a subject line, check spelling, and don't write in CAPITALS.

🎯 I will learn:
- Analyse the structure of an e-mail
- Learn rules for writing e-mails
- Write an informal e-mail

📖 Key words

subject line سطر الموضوع	punctuation علامات الترقيم	confidential سري
urgent عاجل	appropriate مناسب	capital letters الحروف الكبيرة

Ten rules

- Think carefully before you write
- Keep your e-mail short
- Don't send it to people who don't need it
- Think about who you are writing to
- Check spelling, grammar and punctuation
- Don't write in CAPITALS (it looks like shouting)
- Use "smileys" only in very informal e-mails
- Include a subject line — it's the most important part
- Don't send confidential information
- Don't mark e-mails urgent unless they really are

Formal vs informal

- Informal: Hi Mum, / Love, Musallam
- Formal: Dear Mr Hamad, / Best regards, Mohammed Ali

Ten Rules for Writing E-Mails

1. Think carefully about what you write. Is it better to speak to someone rather than write it down where others can read it?
2. Keep your e-mail short – short sentences in one or two paragraphs.
3. Don't send your e-mail to people who do not need to read it.
4. Be polite. Think about who you are writing to and their relationship to you – friend, family or colleague?
5. Pay attention to your spelling, grammar and punctuation.
6. Don't write in CAPITALS – the person reading will think you are shouting.
7. Don't use 'smileys' except in the most informal e-mails.
8. Include a subject line in your message – it's the most important part of an e-mail message.
9. Don't send confidential information – e-mails are not private.
10. Don't mark e-mails high priority or urgent. If your message really is urgent or important, use a telephone.
